There is currently a debt crisis in the Eurozone (that is, countries that use the Euro, the European single currency), with some countries in the Eurozone unable to pay their debts without help. Unless they are given money by other European countries it is likely they would have to default on their debt payments, which would risk bringing down European banks and causing another economic crisis. Countries in Europe are currently discussing further ways of bailing out countries in difficulties or protecting European banks. The costs of trying to save the Eurozone may come to hundreds of billions of pounds.

Do you think countries in Europe are right or wrong to spend money to try and save the Eurozone?

Some people think Britain should contribute money to help solve the debt crisis in the Eurozone. Other people think Britain has its own economic problems to address and that countries within the Eurozone should carry the cost.

Which of the following best reflects your view?

- Britain is not in the Eurozone and has its own problems. We should not contribute any money to help solve the debt crisis
- An economic crisis in the Eurozone would have a major impact on Britain's economy, and Britain should contribute money help solve the debt crisis

Currently male children of the monarch take precedence over female children in terms of inheriting the throne (meaning a younger brother would become King instead of their older sister). Do you think men and women should be treated equally in the line of succession to the throne?

Protesters from the Occupy London campaign are currently camped outside St Paul's Cathedral, as the square outside the London Stock Exchange itself is private property and would not allow them access. St Paul's Cathedral has been closed since last Friday due to health and safety concerns over access to and from the Cathedral during the protest

Do you think St Paul's Cathedral was right or wrong to close?
