Theresa May declined to take part in a leaders debate at this election, and Jeremy Corbyn declined to take part unless Mrs May did. Do you think Theresa May and Jeremy Corbyn should have taken part in a head to head debate?

On the subject of social care for the elderly or disabled...

Currently, anyone in England with assets over £23,250 are required to pay for social care - for residential care, this includes the value of their home. It has been suggested that there should be a cap on the maximum amount that anyone can be required to contribute towards their total care. Which of the following do you think would be an appropriate cap?
