Next May, elections will be held for the European Parliament. These elections are held under a proportional voting system which gives smaller parties a better chance to win seats. If the European Parliament elections were held today, how would you vote – or would you not vote in them at all?

Boris Johnson was elected to serve as Mayor until May 2016. It has been suggested that he might seek to return to the House of Commons as an MP in 2015. Do you think it is reasonable or unreasonable for him to stand for Parliament?

Reasonable - he could make a significant contribution to British politics as an MP	43	62	36	45	62	34	38	45	42	36	46	44	41	45	41

If Boris Johnson is elected as an MP in 2015, should he continue as Mayor until May 2016 or stand down immediately?

Continue as Mayor, just as Ken Livingstone remained as an MP during his first year as Mayor in 2000-01	36	57	26	42	56	23	31	38	34	34	36	36	38	39	33

On a separate issue, the government has postponed until 2015 a decision on whether to build a third runway at Heathrow, expand other airports or build a completely new airport. Do you think the government is right or wrong to postpone this decision?

Right, because it is important to get it right, even if this means taking more time before London has new capacity	48	46	51	43	50	43	54	42	54	48	50	43	53	47	50
Wrong, because there is a crisis in airport capacity around London; London needs extra capacity as soon as possible	34	39	31	48	36	38	32	42	25	29	31	37	37	35	32
