Now, looking at some of the specific changes George Osborne announced in the budget...

There is currently a limit of £1,250,000 on the amount of money people can put into their pension fund over their lifetime. If people have more than this limit in their pension then they have to pay 55% tax on money they withdraw over the limit.

In the budget George Osborne reduced this maximum limit from £1,250,000 to £1,000,000. Do you think this was the right or wrong thing to do?

An annuity is a product that pays someone a regular income for the rest of their life. Until this year it has been compulsory for people to spend most of their pension fund on buying an annuity.

In the Budget George Osborne announced that people who had previously bought an annuity with their pension fund would be able to cash it in if they wished and use the money for something else. Do you think allowing people to cash in annuities is the right or wrong thing to do?

In the budget George Osborne also announced a new "Help to Buy ISA", to help people save for a deposit on a new home. For every £200 people put in a Help to Buy ISA the government would contribute £50. Do you think introducing the Help to Buy ISA is the right or wrong thing to do?

Thinking about the money Tony Blair has earned since leaving the job of Prime Minister, which of the following best reflects your view?

Good for him – he worked very hard as PM for ten years and has every right to make money now	24	21	35	39	15	16	35	23	27	22	33	29	24	16	25	23	30	24	24	22	22	24
He has the right to earn some money, but the amount of money he has earned is too much	31	31	32	31	29	30	30	35	31	31	31	34	31	27	32	29	28	32	30	31	28	31
It is totally wrong that he is using his past position to earn large amounts of money	32	39	24	22	44	47	27	29	32	32	10	21	32	51	31	34	33	32	31	34	30	32
