During the 1980s many Western countries, including the UK, cut off normal diplomatic relations with Libya in response to their involvement in terrorism. Under the last Labour government Britain and other Western countries re-established positive relations with Libya in exchange for Colonel Gaddafi's regime agreeing to abandon its programme developing weapons of mass destruction. Libya also agreed to pay compensation to the victims of the Lockerbie bombing.

Do you think re-establishing positive diplomatic relations with the Gaddafi regime was the right or wrong thing to do?

Colonel Gaddafi's son, Saif Gaddafi, attended the London School of Economics (LSE). In 2009 the LSE accepted a promised £1.5 million donation from a charity foundation run by Saif Gaddafi to fund a programme of research on North Africa, £300,000 of which has been received so far.

Do you think the LSE was right or wrong to accept the money?
