It has been reported that Taimur Abdulwahab al-Abdaly, the suicide bomber who attacked Stockholm this week, was asked to leave a mosque in Luton in 2007 when its directors became concerned over his extremist views. He did not directly advocate violence at the time and the mosque did not inform the police about him.

Do you think the mosque should or should not have informed the police of al-Abdaly's views?

Current laws allow the government to impose control orders on people who they suspect pose a serious terrorist threat, but who they do not have evidence to prosecute.

Control orders can restrict where suspects are allowed to go, items they are not allowed to possess, and who they are allowed to see or communicate with. They do not require a trial and there are only limited rights of appeal.

Do you think the government should or should not have the power to use control orders?
