There is currently a debt crisis in the Eurozone (that is, countries that use the Euro, the European single currency), with some countries in the Eurozone unable to pay their debts without help. Unless they are given money by other European countries it is likely they would have to default on their debt payments, which would risk bringing down European banks and causing another economic crisis. Countries in Europe have agreed a plan for bailing out countries in difficulties and protecting European banks. The costs of trying to save the Eurozone may come to hundreds of billions of Euros.

Do you think countries in Europe are right or wrong to spend money to try and save the Eurozone?

This week a deal was struck to bailout the Greek economy. Greece would be given a bailout of 130bn Euros and banks agreed to write off 50% of their debt. In exchange Greece would have to significantly cut their public spending, reducing wages and making civil servants redundant

The Greek Prime Minister, George Papandreou, later announced he would hold a referendum in Greece on whether to accept or reject the deal. Some people think it is right that the Greek people should decide whether or not to accept the deal in a referendum.

It is right that the Greek people should be able to vote on the bailout in a referendum	31	31	42	17
A referendum would cause an unacceptable delay, the bailout needs to be put in place immediately	47	36	40	69
